Time to Plant and Grow our Membership!

My wife Liz and I attended the club's annual convention after an absence of four years (I took a sojourn into politics as mayor of Prescott AZ for two of those years plus a year of campaigning). While I was glad to be back, I was shocked by the lack of attendance at the convention. I made a personal commitment then and there to work on increasing the club's membership.

I need your help to be successful. My commitment is to increase the club membership by fifty (50) members by the next convention. A challenging goal? Yes it is, but with your help it will be accomplished.

What I am doing

I started a Phoenix & Consolidated Art Glass Facebook page. 82 people have ‘Liked’ our page in about a month. I composed and distributed a news release about auctions results from the club’s members only auction (complete with pictures) to several leading antique trade publications. We got good coverage in AntiqueWeek and Maine Antique Digest, to mention just a couple.

In addition, the club’s Board of Directors has unanimously approved a special discounted membership offer for members that have not paid their dues for at least two years and new members we attract using Facebook and other social media tools. I am working with Tom Jiamachello on a campaign that will make this offer to prior members whose membership has lapsed.

In the future I expect to do some YouTube videos about the glass to pull interested people to the Facebook page. I also expect to pitch a couple of full-blown articles to the major antique media. Again, the goal is to get people interested, pull them to the Facebook page and convert them to club members.

How you can help

Visit the Facebook page, click the Like button and encourage collectors, dealers and museums you have contact with to do the same. Also, get engaged on our Facebook page and share something – a picture, a comment on a find, an upcoming auction or a question. Think about the Facebook page as a virtual extension of the club! If you participate on blogs that discuss antiques, post a comment about our new Facebook page.

More ambitious? You could write an article or do a YouTube video on your own. If you want to try that, let us coordinate first to ensure we get readers/viewers to the right place if they are interested. Use Twitter? Then publicize our Facebook page (I am on Twitter as JackWilsonAZ).

And by our next club convention in July 2011, we will have a lot more attendees, more glass for sale or trade and more fun for all. Can I count on your help?

As of October 6 2010, there were 84 people who have “Liked” the new Facebook page.

Let’s aim for 100 by 2011!

The PCGCC is organized and operated exclusively for charitable and educational purposes, including:

Raising the public's awareness and appreciation for the special characteristics, heritage, and unique historical value of Phoenix and Consolidated art glass.

Promoting the study and appreciation of Phoenix and Consolidated art glass.

Broadening our knowledge about and aiding in the preservation of Phoenix and Consolidated art glass.

Encouraging and assisting new collectors.

Encouraging museums to acquire Phoenix and Consolidated art glass as part of their permanent collections for display to the public.

By Sue Cotter

The convention was great; I had so much fun!!

I have to thank Randy and Nancy Sambolt for doing a wonderful job, and look forward to what they have in store for next year.

It was nice to see the Wilsons back in Coraopolis! Jack has been busy on his computer. If you have some time you should go on Facebook and see how many people are interested in our glass!

Kathy was unable to attend due to her father's passing (see page 5), so I became the Phoenix person. Friday evening a gentleman and his wife from Monaca stopped by my room and we started talking about Phoenix glass and Monaca.

You may know that I got started collecting the glass because my dad grew up in Monaca and his family worked at the glass company. Every convention I talk to someone from his home town and I ask if they knew the Cotters. The answer is always no. I sometimes find someone that know Dr. Perri, who lived next door and put dad through medical school (dad in turn did the same for his son) and turned dad's family home into a doctor's office for him ( which didn't work out, since dad never returned). The man's family had been in Monaca a very long time, so I asked him to write down his name and address. He also wrote down the name of the family business.

I went home with the information and when I picked up Panther, my dog from dad's house I showed it to him. I hit pay dirt with this information!!! My Uncle Jim worked for this man's family back in the twenties when he was about twelve years of age: He delivered ice in a horse and wagon.

It was great to connect the club convention to the family. One of the reasons we hold the convention in Coraopolis is so we can talk to the people who worked at the glass companies. I am thrilled I was able to take advantage of this opportunity.

I am off to Vermont to learn how to make cheese! A first step in preparation for my farming life!

I will spend an entire day at Shelburne Farms learning how to make cheddar cheese, then I plan to travel the Vermont Cheese trail sampling all different types of cheese, since there are almost 40 producers on the trail. (Editor's note: I hope Sue will drop by my house, see the collection, and share some of that cheese and wine!)

I hope to find some wineries along the way, so I can have the ultimate wine and cheese experience!!!

Editor's Column:

By Tom Jiamachello

The first touches of red, orange and gold are dappling the mountainsides up here in Vermont. It is the time of change!

So, too, for your Phoenix & Consolidated Glass Collectors Club.

Here are some of the initiatives and changes which pertain to our membership and our newsletter. We hope you will support the Board of Directors in their quest to grow the Club and continue to provide excellent benefits for membership.

As you noted on the front page, Jack Wilson is spearheading a project to raise the visibility of our Club on the Internet and to attract new members. I urge you to join the Facebook page. It's simple. Just go to the address and click the "Like" button. That is all there is to it.

On to your newsletter.

After a pilot year of delivering the newsletter in digital format to our members, the reaction has been mostly positive. Some members print out the newsletter to have a paper copy on hand while others simply store the digital newsletter in a handy place on their computer.

To make it even easier to view the digital newsletters, I consolidated all four issues into one CD which I had available at convention for sale for a very reasonable price of $5. As it costs only $1 to do, not only does this provide convenience to our members, it also raises some money for the club.

Each of the 25 paper copies of the newsletter we now print costs about $12 each when you include the cost of shipping the paper copies to Vermont, then mailing them to our members who prefer a paper copy. As we stated in July 2009, we did this for one year.

At our Annual Board Meeting, the Board of Directors announced that the paper copies of the newsletter would still be available but there would now be a subscription fee of $25 a year to receive the newsletter in paper form. This covers only 50% of the cost to print the newsletters. We hope you will agree that it is a reasonable compromise. The Club cannot afford to print the paper copies anymore without a subscription fee. This is the last issue of the newsletter which will be free. I will place a form with the newsletter to be sent to our Treasurer Ruth Ann Davis.

So, now for some updates and tidbits.

21 people registered for the Convention, 16 staying at the hotel. We had two rooms of glass for sale, thanks to Gary

Wickland and Bruce Mueller and the Club Sales Room. Tom Burns brought great glass ( see auction results in Newsletter). We hope to support Jack Wilson and add 50 members to our Club and double the attendance at next year's convention, which will run from July 28-30, 2011

See you at the Convention 2011!

Send your contributions, large or small to: TopofVT@aol.com

Happy Collecting! Tom

P.S. If none of your contact information has changed, just pop a check into the mail and send along to Ruth Ann. Simply put "No change" on the Memo line and you will be all set. Single membership: $25, Couple Membership: $35.

Why not pay for 2011-2012 too!!

P.P.S I will provide more convention reports once the photos from the convention are available.

In Appreciation from Kathy Hansen

Dear Friends,

I was surprised to receive a beautiful “dish garden” from the Phoenix & Consolidated Club recently. It was very thoughtful of you to remember me during this sad time, and I truly appreciate all of the cards, thoughts, and prayers I’ve received after the death of my father (Editor’s Note; July 17, 2010). Dad and I had a really good visit this past winter, and I’m glad to have those memories to treasure.

I extend my heartfelt thanks to all of you for your caring, concern, and, most especially, for your friendship.

Kathy Hansen

PCGCC Club Shirt with Logo

It took a year to be able to offer shirts with the BEAUTIFUL Phoenix and Consolidated Glass Collectors Club logo, but at this year's convention you will be able to place an order and show pride in your club.

For Women: Shirt with logo $25.00

You may order a collared V neck shirt with 2 buttons on the placket. This shirt is by Port Authority and is a fine honeycomb knit 100% cotton which washes beautifully. The size range is XS-XXL; Plus 1X, Plus 2X. I find that the sizes are very true to body measurements IF you want a form fitting shirt. If you want a shirt with an easier fit, I suggest going up one size. The colors are Blue Surf, Light Pink, Cinnamon, White, Seafoam, Dark Green, Red, Navy, Ivory, Stone, Burgundy, Blueberry, Banana, and Black. Personally, I thought the logo was especially attractive on the Seafoam which is a sage green shade.

For Men: Shirt with logo $ 25.00

Men may also choose a shirt of this same fabric described above and in the same color range offered for women. The size range for men would be XS to 6XL. Another choice would be a shirt that is also made by Port Authority and is almost a duplicate of the shirts that Gary and Tom sport at the conventions. The stripe trim on the collar and cuff adds a distinctive touch to the soft, supple pique that is easy care, wrinkle and shrink resistant. The size range is XS to 4XL. I am told that these shirts run true to size. The colors are Black with Winter white stripe; Light Brown with Winter white stripe, Navy with Winter White stripe; Light Moss with Winter White stripe; Winter White with Light Brown stripe; Red with Winter white stripe; and Ultramarine Blue with Navy stripe. With the colors in the logo I would think that the Light moss or white shirts would work well.

With orders placed at the convention there will have to be a small shipping charge added so that it can be mailed to you. See RuthAnn at the convention for more information and to place an order.

So, as you can see, there was something for every collector in this auction. The auction was, as always, a fast paced and very fun event. There were many laughs during the course of the auction, and I believe that everyone left the auction happy with what they had purchased. After what showed up at this auction, who knows what will be at the 2011 PCGCC convention and member's only auction !! Start planning on what you plan to consign and maybe even donate to the club.

Early Consolidated Pattern Glass - Part Four

In this month's installment on early Consolidated pattern glass, I will feature Fish, Flower Assortment, Flower and Rib, Gaudy Leaf.

For each pattern, I will list the colors known and if there are cased examples of the pattern. It is my hope this will help you recognize and perhaps join me in appreciating this era of Consolidated glass production.

1. Fish:

was made circa 1894-1900 and is considered scarce.

It is known in five colors: white decorated (also known as "milk" glass), opaque blue, opaque green, opaque pink.

It was also made in cased pink.

Shaker stands 3 1/8 inches tall

2. Flower Assortment:

was made circa 1894-1897.

It is known in three color variations: opaque blue, opaque white (milk), and variegated pink. It was also made in cased pink.

Shaker stands 3 1/4 inches tall.

3. Flower and Rib:

was made circa 1894-1900.

It is known in only the four opaque colors: opaque blue, opaque green, opaque variegated pink, and white

It is not known in cased colors.

Shaker is 3 1/2 inches tall.

4. Gaudy Leaf:

was made circa 1894-1902.

It is known only in cranberry.

Shaker stands 2 3/4 inches tall.

Coming next issue: Guttate, Guttate (Squatty), Half Cone, Half Ribbed
